Introduction

A NAAC accreditation officially qualifies the quality of your Higher Education Institute in terms of its education, research, faculty, infrastructure & many other criteria. It gives learners the confidence that the education they receive is of the highest quality. Reputed institutes have a legacy allowing students an unofficial insight into the quality of education via news or past students. This often doesn't hold true for newly incorporated higher education institutions. The UGC periodically reiterates the mandate on the requirement to obtain NAAC Accreditations in accordance with the goals laid out in NEP 2020. The Indian higher education ecosystem widely missed out on this mark with 70% of education entities still 'not recognised' in the country.

What stands in the way?

NAAC application process is often cumbersome or confusing

Process undergoes frequent changes & parameters are updated

Data & information is mandatorily required in a structured & chronological manner

Application process involves lengthy information storage for multiple years

What a NAAC accreditation gets you!

Brand building - A NAAC rating augments & positions your brand as one with quality education.

Higher enrollment - Approx. 25% rise in admissions when students rightly gauge education from a standardized evaluation system.

Online operations - Accreditation is a prerequisite for going online with your education offerings, reducing borders & effectively opening up your university to students country-wide.

Quality control - Enables continued control to maintain quality internal processes & communication.

Better funding - Accreditation opens up possibilities for UGC grants & objective evaluation for funding from private agencies.

Student clarity - An accreditation promotes reliable & standardized evaluation of educational standards for students & the public.
